THE HOLY LAND.—The Fields of Ruth and Boaz, near Bethlehem, the City of David, looking across a pleasant landscape to the dim blue mountains of Moab. We remember the idyllic story of Ruth and Naomi, and think how Ruth must often have gazed across these very fields, when the reapers of Boaz were working in them, to her distant home in those mountains. Here too, King David played in boyhood, and for the water of its well he longed in the day of his adversity.
